BIOGRAPHICAL DIRECTORY OF LEADING RESIDENTS OF THE PHILIPPINES

Alphabetically Arranged and Revised to April 30, 1938

ABAD, Antonio — Proprietor and Rice Grower; res., Gapan, Nueva Ecija.

Mr. Abad was born in Gapan, Nueva Ecija, January 17, 1865. For thirteen years he held the office of Cabeza de Barangay and for three years discharged the duties of Capitan de Cuadrilleros during the Spanish regime in the Islands. In the early part of American occupation he helped the government in the construction of roads and other public improvements in his home province; thereafter he has devoted his time to farming and is now one of the big rice producers of Nueva Ecija.

ABAD, Antonio K. — Journalist, Author, and Businessman, res., 2735 Oroquieta, Manila.

Born in San Isidro, Nueva Ecija, on August 13, 1886; the son of Atanacio Abad

Santiano and Hermogena Kabigting of Arayat, Pampanga; married to the former Miss Socorro Laged by whom he has thirteen children: Eliseo (Asst. Civil Engineer), Artemio (L.L.B.), Angelina (Pharmacist), Romeo (deceased), Julieta, Julpha, Antonio, Isidro, Romeo, Temistocles, Gertrudis, Manuel and Teresita; educated in the Philippine School of Commerce; was chief clerk, District Engineer's office, provinces of Rizal and Nueva Ecija, 1911-1920; on business 1921-1935; special investigator, Department of Labor; resigned from his government position and engaged himself in business. He is the author of "Ang Pagkakanulo kay Heneral El Aguinaldo" (The capture of General E. Aguinaldo); "Ang Mahiwagang Pagkakapatay Kay Hen. Antonio Luna" (The Mysterious Death of General Antonio Luna); "Ang Pagkabaril kay Andres Bonifacio" (The Execution of Andres Bonifacio); "The Revolution and History of Nueva Ecija" (First prize, Muñoz Exposition); "Saan Ka Patutuño?"; "English-Tagalog Dictionary"; "Pilipino-Tagalog Dictionary" and several short stories written in Tagalog.

Antonio K. Abad

He was affiliated with the opposition party in 1922 and was the campaign manager of the Democrata Party in Nueva Ecija in its political skirmishes with the rival faction. He has distinguished himself as an orator and speaker in various political gatherings and meetings. His impassioned and fiery speeches criticizing the party in power swayed the masses that led then to the overwhelming victory of the Democrata Party in said province.

But since the presidential election campaign of 1935, Mr. Abad became a leader of the Coalition and is now a fervent follower of the new Nacionalista Party. He is one of the foremost and active leaders of the Buencamino faction in Nueva Ecija.

Following Rizal's advice, he studied and labored hard until he succeeded in organizing the Philippine Independent Church, otherwise known as Aglipayan Church, thru the assistance of Don Isabelo de los Reyes, his co-founder.

Mons. Gregorio Aglipay

The first mass of the Independent Church was sung in Tondo, Manila, in the early part of American occupation. He has now a large number of followers in almost every province of the Philippines.

His Eminence, Mons. Aglipay, was also a General during the Philippine Revolution. This was one of the reasons why the ecclesiastical authorities of the Roman Catholic Church did not like him. In 1931, he went to the United States as the guest of honor of the Universalists and Unitarians, and he returned to the Philippines with new ideas to make his church the national religion of the Filipinos. In the first Commonwealth election held September 17, 1935, he ran as a presidential candidate on the Republican ticket against Senate President Quezon and General Aguinaldo, and obtained a total of 147,951 votes as against 694,104 for the former and 179,390 for the latter. He is a member of the Advisory Board of the Popular Front (Pagkakaisa ng Bayan).

AGONCILLO, Eugenia — Pianist, and Instructor in Piano; res., 1146 M. H. del Pilar, Malate, Manila.

Miss Agoncillo was born in Batangas, Batangas; the daughter of Don Felipe Agoncillo. She is a gifted pianist, having studied piano under the Very Rev. Sister Baptiste Battig for nine years, after studying one year under Mr. Evaristo Yupangco and two years under the Italian teacher, Mr. Catanen.

While yet a fifth-year student in piano, she was obliged by her teacher, Rev. S. Baptiste, to teach beginners and from that time on

she has been very busy teaching piano, so much so that on many occasions she has to turn out pupils for lack of time. She graduated from St. Scholastica's College, where she is an instructor in piano, and presents annually her students in recital. She is also a member of the faculty of the state Conservatory of Music.

Eugenia Agoncillo

AGONCILLO, Felipe — Lawyer and Statesman; res., 1146 M. H. del Pilar, Malate, Manila.

Don Felipe Agoncillo was born in Lipa, Batangas, where he completed the elementary course. He took the secondary course in the Ateneo de Manila and later transferred to the University of Santo Tomas, where he graduated with the degree of Master of Laws (Licenciado en Derecho), after which he began law practice in Manila. The Philippine Revolutionary Government commissioned him as Minister Plenipotentiary to Europe. He was in Paris when the Treaty of Peace was signed on December 10, 1898. He went to Washington, D.C., and worked for the recognition of the Philippine Republic but his efforts to make contact with the President of the United States were unsuccessful. He stayed in Hongkong where he cooperated with the Filipino Central Committee during the Revolution. He was elected Deputy to the first Philippine Assembly from the first district of Batangas in 1907, and was ap-

Born in Bulacán, Bulacán, on November 10, 1883. She received her first education in Bulacán and then studied at the Colegio de la Concordia in Manila. In 1911 she married Leopoldo R. Aguinaldo, the founder of the well-known business firm bearing his name.

Mrs. Aguinaldo has done a lot to help her husband make the business grow bigger and bigger every year since its establishment in 1921. They started with a capital of P6,000.00 and now they own two concrete buildings bearing their name. She is considered one of the most successful women engaged in business in the Islands. During her husband's absence while visiting different countries in the interest of their business abroad, Mrs. Aguinaldo expanded their business in Manila and all over the Islands.

AGUINALDO, Emilio — Farmer, Military Officer, and former President of the First-while Philippine Republic; res., Kawit, Cavite; city address, 605 San Nicolas, Manila.

Gen. Emilio Aguinaldo

Born in Kawit, Cavite, March 30, 1869. He received his secondary education from San Juan de Letran College in Manila, graduating with the degree of A.B. In 1895 he was chosen as Capitán Municipal (Municipal President) of Kawit, Cavite. He joined the Katipunan, a patriotic association headed by Andrés Bonifacio, and in recognition of his courage and tact as a leader he was elected Supreme Head of the revolutionary government in 1896. In 1897 a treaty of peace, known as the Pact of Biak-na-Bato, was signed thru the mediation of Pedro A. Paterno, and, in accordance with the terms of said treaty, General Aguinaldo together with other revolutionary officers left the Islands for Hongkong (see pp. 29-31), but they returned to the Islands in 1898 to resume the fight against Spain and established a Dictatorial Government in Cavite on May 24, 1898, upon the advice of Don Ambrosio Rianzares Bautista, with Aguinaldo as Dictator. On June 12 of that year, he proclaimed the Independence of the Philippines in Cavite, and on the 23rd of same month the dictatorial government gave way to the Revolutionary Government which drafted the Political Constitution at Malolos that was promulgated on January 21, 1899. Aguinaldo was elected President of the Philippine Republic and was at the same time the Captain General and Commander-in-Chief of the Philippine forces. (See Constitution, pp. 35-46).

Because of President McKinley's instructions to maintain the sovereignty of the United States over the Philippine Islands, the Malolos Constitution was given no recognition by the American military governor and, as a result of a misunderstanding between Admiral Dewey and General Otis, on the one hand, and General Aguinaldo and his officers, on the other, followed by constant frictions between the American and Filipino forces when one party or the other encroached too far upon the neutral zone established between them, an armed conflict started at San Juan Bridge on February 4, 1899, and the fight lasted until General Aguinaldo's army was defeated. General Funston and four American officers, with a company of Macabebes, embarked on the Vicksburg, and landed at Casiguran Bay, about one hundred miles south of Palanan, Isabela, where by means of a ruse they captured General Aguinaldo on March 23rd and brought him to Manila and held him prisoner at Malacañan Palace. On April 19, 1901, General Aguinaldo signed his last proclamation (see page 71), acknowledging and accepting the sovereignty of the United States. He then retired to his farm in Cavite and lived a country life. Later in 1915 he was elected President of the Asociacion de Vete- ranos de la Revolución, which organization he heads up to the present time.

In recognition of his past services, and because of his refusal to accept any appointive office, the Philippine Legislature has voted him an annual pension of twelve thousand pesos. In the first Commonwealth presidential election held in 1935, General Aguinaldo opposed the candidacy of Senate President Quezon. Mons. Aglipay also ran for the same office.

Sultan Ombra Amilbangsa

Born in a little town of Uhal, Sulu, in 1904; son of Datu Amilbangsa, present Deputy Governor of Tawi-Tawi, and Dayang Sili Hunjamai, of the famous Tanfung family; married to Princess Dayang Dayang Hadji Pandao, niece of the late Sultan Hadji M. Jamalul Kiram, the only recognized Royalty in this part of the world; acquired his early education in Tampakan Primary School and the Tabigmalingan Elementary School; completed his secondary course in the Sulu Provincial High School in 1931; took preparatory course in law in the College of Liberal Arts, University of Manila; appointed by ex-Governor-General Frank Murphy and served as Representative of Sulu in the Philippine Legislature from 1934 to 1935; and won with an overwhelming majority in the elections of 1935 for Assemblyman from Sulu in the first National Assembly under the Philippine Commonwealth.

The marriage of Datu Ombra to Princess Dayang Dayang has united in Moroland two most powerful royal factions. Both are spiritual and political leaders of their people. This combined influence of two outstanding figures in Sulu accounted for the overwhelming victory of Datu Ombra in the general elections of 1935. As a member of the defunct Philippine Legislature, Datu Ombra figured out prominently in some progressive legislations affecting the welfare of Moroland. He was an ardent advocate of the extension of suffrage to the male population of Mindanao.

Sultan Ombra has the distinction of being the first Mohammedan Filipino to have been appointed Governor of Sulu.

He is a Nationalist by party affiliation, and a staunch supporter of President Quezon.

CABILI, Tomas L.—Assemblyman from Lanao; res., 789 Maria Carpena, Sampaloc, Manila.

A Lawyer, journalist, educator and assemblyman from Lanao, Hon. Cabili, otherwise known as Sultan Demasangkay - ko - Lanao, was born in Iligan, Lanao, March 7, 1903. He is the son of Guillermo Cabili and Epifania H. Lluisma. He studied in the Cebu and Zamboanga provincial high schools, Siliman Institute, Junior College of the University of the Philippines in Cebu, and in the National University. He was brilliant as a student, distinguishing himself as an orator when he won the Osmena medal in an Oratorical contest. He also won the first prize Jocson medal in an annual debate in the Philippine Law School. After graduating he was made instructor in the colleges of law and liberal arts of the Visayan Institute, 1929-1930. Urged by the so-called "writing itch" which he had so earnestly devoted himself while serving as a reporter of the Advertiser and later member of the staff of the Freeman of Cebu (1924-1926), he again took up to the news game as a correspondent of the National News Service between 1930 and 1932 and again from 1933 up to his election to the first National Assembly and as a Lanao correspondent for the DMHM papers and the Graphic.

The first Lanao Exposition and Carnival saw him the first Director-General. He was the president of the league for the acceptance of the HHC Act in Lanao, and was elected in July, 1934, to the Constitutional Convention on the PRO ticket.

Attorney Cabili was the only delegate to the Constitutional Convention who did not sign the Constitution, which was formally ratified on February 8, 1935. He thundered his refusal on seven reasons: (1) that it carries no provision to promote the progress of the Non-Christians as provided in Article XIII, Sec. 5, of the proposed draft; (2) that it places too much power in the executive department, which might inspire the establishment of a dictatorial government; (3) that it carries no no provision for municipal or provincial autonomy; (4) that it might encourage communism because of the allowance given to the government to appropriate and substitute landed estates; (5) that the safeguards provided against the acquisition of agricultural lands by foreigners are not sufficient; (6) that there is no provision made for the nationalization of the retail trade; and (7) that there was too much intervention from the outside, especially from President Quezon, in the drafting of the Constitution.

Despite the strength of the "Anti" faction, Attorney Cabili won a seat in the National Assembly under the "Pro" ticket in the elections of September 17, 1935.

Assemblyman Cabili is married to the former Miss Felicitas N. Pepito of Cebu, by whom he has five children: Vismindo, Camilo, Fe, Fulgencio and Teodoro Delano. He is a Protestant, being a member of the Presbyterian Church.

Rodolfo R. Cornejo-Soldevilla

Prof. Cornejo, the second son of Miguel R. Cornejo and Crisanta Soldevilla, was born in Manila, Philippine Islands, May 15, 1909. His musical talent revealed itself early, and at the age of 10 years, he began composing. Three years after his graduation from the High School, he graduated in Pianoforte, Science and Composition from the Conservatory of Music, University of the Philippines, in 1930, with such honors that he was immediately appointed Instructor in Piano and Theory at the same Institution. The next year he was granted leave of absence to pursue advanced studies in Piano, Composition and Conducting in the United States, under noted professors at the Chicago Musical College, Chicago, where he was awarded the Glenn Dillard Gun Scholarship in Piano for 1931-1932, and the following year, won the LaViolette Scholarship in Composition at said college. The degree of Bachelor of Music was conferred on him in 1932, and in 1933, only one year later, he completed the exigent requirements for the degree of Master of Music which included his orchestra thesis entitled Concerto in D Minor for Piano and Orchestra (3 movements). At the Commencement Exercises of the Chicago Musical College in June, 1933, he won the coveted appearance as soloist with the College Symphony Orchestra under direction of Leon Sametini, playing his own Piano-Concerto in D Minor. On this occasion he received a great ovation, and was recalled to the stage four times at the insistence of the audience.

In the Philippines he studied under Alexander Lippay, Ph. D., and Robert L. Schofield, Mus. D., both former directors of the Conservatory of Music, University of the Philippines, and Francisco Santiago, Mus. D., present director. In the United States he studied under Rudolph Ganz, Mus. D., now president of the Chicago Musical College; Wesley LaViolette, Mus. D., now head of the Theory Department, De Paul University School of Music; and Glenn Dillard Gunn, Mus. D., artistic director, Chicago Conservatory of Music.

He has given numerous concerts in the Philippines, namely, Manila, Baguio, Iloilo and Negros Occidental. In the United States he has appeared in solo recitals in major concert halls, including Orchestra Hall in Chicago. On many occasions he has appeared as soloist with Symphony Orchestra in the Philippines and the United States under well-known conductors. His excellent reputation as composer has resulted in his giving numerous programs consisting entirely of his original compositions.

Among his classical compositions the following are considered outstanding: Planting Rice, Op. 64 (For Solo Orchestra); Concerto in D Minor for Piano and Orchestra, Op. 63 (3 movements); A la Juventud Filipina, Op. 69 (Chorus with Orchestra); The Song of the Miners, Op. 70 (Chorus with Orchestra); The Seasons (Song Cycle) Op. 61 (for Soprano and String Orchestra); Sonata for Violin and Piano, Op. 54 (3 movements); Ave Maria, Op. 27 (Soprano with Orchestra Accompaniment); Sonata in C Minor, Op. 10 Piano Solo (3 movements); Fair Dreams (Operetta in 3 Acts); Polarusse, Op. 67 (For Two Pianos, 4 hands).

His compositions are classified as follows: Piano Solos: Nocturne, Op. 75; Second Nocturne, Op. 86; A Pleasure Trip to Hongkong, Op. 31; The Gossipers, Op. 59; The Bells and the Wind, Op. 45, No. 1; Valse Romantique, Op. 77; Fugue (in 4 voices), Op. 50; Polonaise in F Major, Op. 26; Glamour, Op. 68; Petite Variations, Op. 73; Kwan Yuen and the Lotus, Op. 85; Etude in A Flat, Op. 84; Chant Sans Paroles, Op. 87. Violin Solos: Cavatina, Op. 34, Meditation, Op. 35. Harp Solo: Song Without Words, Op. 82. Vocal Solos: Non Partire (Romanza) Op. 11; The Mother in the House, Op. 60; Terpsichore, Op. 76; Quien Eres? This was his first station outside of the Mountain Province, although the province remained within the territory of his district. His 19 years of continuous service in the Mountain Province afforded him an opportunity to study the Mountain people, particularly the Ifugaos whose dialect he mastered well. He knows the province and its inhabitants as well as any person living, and for this reason he was made its chief executive when Hon. John C. Early resigned as provincial governor in February, 1929.

Because of his efficient services he had had rapid promotion in the Constabulary; he was promoted second lieutenant on July 1, 1908; first lieutenant on February 11, 1911; captain on September 1, 1915; major on February 4, 1919; lieutenant-colonel and assistant chief on March 10, 1924; and colonel and assistant chief on October 16, 1930.

Born in Tacloban, Leyte, on October 4, 1878. Son of Emeterio Enage and Cleofe Abella. Before he became a Lawyer, he was a lieutenant in the Philippine Revolutionary Army and was wounded during an encounter with the American force in 1900. He entered politics in the early part of American administration and was elected Municipal Councilor of Tacloban, the capital of Leyte. Later on he was elected Provincial Governor of same province. He was Representative from the fourth district of Leyte from 1912 to 1916, and Senator from the ninth senatorial district comprising the provinces of Leyte and Samar from 1919 to 1925. He was once a Floor Leader of the Philippine Assembly, and twice President Pro-tempore of the Philippine Senate. He also held the positions of Provincial Fiscal of Iloilo, Executive Secretary, and Judge of the Court of First Instance. In the first Commonwealth elections held on September 17, 1935, he ran as an Anti candidate for Assemblyman from the fourth district of Leyte and won his seat; but, to avoid a deadlock in the election of Speaker of the National Assembly, for which office he was one of the candidates, he resigned as Assemblyman to accept the position of Technical Adviser in the Office of the President at Malacañan, which position he still holds.

FERNANDO, Matias A.—Businessman; Proprietor and General Manager, Angat-Manila Transportation; res., Angat, Bulacan.

There are many ways of serving the country, and one of them is how to transport the people from one place to another. During the Spanish regime this kind of public service was unknown. The Government paid little or no attention to public works and communications. But since the American occupation of the Islands, roads were traced, opened and constructed to facilitate the transportation of persons and their needs, and people began to interest themselves in operating transportation companies in almost all parts of the country. Mr. Matias A. Fernando, whose picture we have gladly published herein, has done his part of the work of nationalizing the transportation business by organizing, operating and managing the Manila-Angat line. He is also engaged in mining and farming, being the owner of large landed estates.

Matias A. Fernando

FRANKS, Charles W. — Chief Statistician, Office of the U.S. High Commissioner; res., 68 Panaderos, Santa Ana, Manila; tel. 5-53-82.

Born in Brookville, Illinois, U.S.A., on August 1, 1876; son of George and Clara (McCullough) Franks; graduated with the degree of Bachelor of Arts from the University of Illinois, in 1901; married to the former Miss Mary Harrington, of Lanark, Ill., Oct. 6, 1906. Daughters: Mrs. Camillus Flower, and Mrs. H. J. Wolfisberg.

Mr. Franks arrived in the Philippines together with the first six hundred American teachers, in 1901. Since that time, he has served the Philippine government, first, as teacher, and later as Division Superintendent of Schools, Bureau of Education, until 1918; and then as Assistant Secretary to the Governor-General of the Philippine Islands during the latter part of administration of Governor-General Francis Burton Harrison, 1918-21; and as Secretary to the succeeding Governors-General of the Philippine Islands, from Governor-General Wood, 1921, to Governor General Murphy, 1935. Upon the inauguration of the new Government of the Commonwealth of the Philippines on November 15, 1935, his office as Secretary to the Governor-General automatically ceased, but he continued to work under the First U. S. High Commissioner, His Excellency, Frank Murphy, and is now Chief Statistician in the Office of the U. S. High Commissioner. Mr. Franks, as his name indicates, is not only frank but also sincere, honest and upright in his dealings as an officer; courteous, modest, and pleasing, as a gentleman; and always kind, just, and humanitarian, as a Christian. Such is the true conception the writer has of this good American educator, secretary, and statistician, who has spent the best part of his life in the service of the Philippine government, from 1901 to 1935.

HINES, John L. — Major General, U. S. Army, Retired; former Commanding General, Philippine Department, U. S. Army, at Fort Santiago, Manila; res., White Sulphur Springs, West Va., U. S. A.

Major General John L. Hines was born in White Sulphur Springs, West Va., May 21, 1868. He was appointed to the U. S. Military Academy from West Va., graduating in the class of 1891. General Hines was first assigned to the second infantry, then stationed at Omaha, Nebraska, upon his graduation from the U. S. Military Academy. He remained with this regiment for the next ten years, and it was during this period that he learned much that was later to become of invaluable assistance to him when great military problems were placed before him for solution. With the second infantry he saw service in Cuba, landing at Cienfuegos, with his Company on May 30, 1898. One month later, he was cited in War Department General Orders for gallantry in action against Spanish forces in Santiago. He returned to the United States with his regiment in 1900, and was ordered to the Philippines three months later. His first station was at Boac, Marinduque, where he spent much of his time on scouting duty. Here he was mentioned in regimental orders, second infantry, for his services during the Philippine Insurrection. This pictures the early years of General Hines' commissioned service in the U. S. Army. During the World War, we find him in France as Regimental Brigade and Corps Commander. As colonel of the 16th infantry, first division, he took his regiment to its baptism of fire in the Toul Sector, January, 1918. On Aug. 25, 1918, General Hines received his second star and was given the fourth division. In addition to the awards for valor in the Philippines, Cuba, and France, General Hines received the following foreign decorations for his services in the World War: Commander of the Order of Leopold (Belgium), Knight Commander of St. Michael and St. George (Gr. Britain), Commander of the Legion of Honor, Croix de Guerre with Palm (France), Grand Officer of the Order of the Crown (Italy), and Medal of La Solidaridad (Panama). General Hines assumed command of the Philippine Department on Oct. 2, 1930.

During his three previous tours of duty in the Philippines, he has become thoroughly familiar with them. In addition to Marinduque, he has seen service in Jolo, Zamboanga, Malabon, Iloilo, and Manila. Major General Hines has now retired from the Army. He is residing at White Sulphur Springs, West Virginia.

NORWAY, one of the three Scandinavian kingdoms, is a long, narrow country extending more than 1,000 miles southward from the most northerly point of Europe. The Kingdom of Norway is a monarchy in name, but is one of the most democratic countries in the world. Women enjoy the same political rights as men, and there are no titled classes. From 1814 to 1905 Norway and the neighboring kingdom of Sweden were united under the same king, but in the latter year the union, always distasteful to the independent, proud-spirited Norwegians, was dissolved. The people of Norway are universally respected for their honesty, thrift and love of democratic institutions. — (From p. 2608, The American Educator)

HUGHES, John H. — Major General, U. S. Army, Commanding General, Philippine Department, Fort Santiago, Manila.

Major General John H. Hughes was born in New York City, N.Y., U.S., on February 4, 1876. He entered the U. S. Military Academy June 21, 1893, and was appointed additional second lieutenant, 17th Infantry, on June 11, 1897. On August 8, 1897, he was appointed second lieutenant, 4th Infantry, and joined his regiment at Fort Sheridan, Illinois. He accompanied his regiment to Cuba in 1898, and on July 1, 1898, was twice severely wounded while leading his platoon in action. For his bravery under fire after receiving severe wounds, he was recommended for the medal of honor and a brevet first lieutenancy. He was later awarded a silver star citation for exceptional gallantry in action during the operations at El Caney on this date.

On January 19, 1899, he sailed with the 4th Infantry from New York to Manila on the transport "Grant", the first American transport to pass through the Suez Canal. Arriving at Manila on March 10, 1899, he took part in the operations of his regiment around Manila, on the Morong expedition and in Cavite Province under Generals Lawton and Wheaton.

On March 2, 1899, he was promoted to first lieutenant, remaining on duty with the 4th Infantry on various assignments as a company officer and later as regimental commissary. On June 30, 1899, he was assigned to Company C, 4th Infantry, and commanded it until September 11, 1899, when he was appointed battalion adjutant and assigned to duty with the 1st Battalion, 4th Infantry. From June 1, 1899, to May 28, 1900, he was stationed at Imus, Cavite Province, serving the latter part of that period as regimental commissary, 4th Infantry. From July 1, 1900, to October 15, 1900, he was on duty at Cavite as regimental commissary, 4th Infantry, changing station on latter date to San Francisco de Malabon (now General Trias, Cavite). On March 11, 1901, he was assigned to duty with 2nd Battalion, 4th Infantry, as battalion adjutant, and served in that capacity until January 20, 1902, when he sailed for the United States with station at Fort Clark, Texas.

On March 12, 1902, he was promoted to Captain, remaining on duty with the 4th Infantry until August 23, 1902, when he was placed on temporary duty as recruiting officer, New York City. On March 15, 1903, he again joined the 4th Infantry at Fort Brown, Texas, and proceeded with it to the Philippines. Upon his return in 1905 to the United States he continued to serve with the 4th Infantry at Fort Thomas, Kentucky, until February 1, 1908, when he again sailed with the regiment for the Philippines, and took station at Camp Josaman. On May 7, 1910, he returned to the United States via Europe and rejoined the 4th Infantry at Fort Crook on October 5, 1910. On December 14, 1910, he was ordered to Fort Riley for duty in subsistence department, and on January 29, 1911, he was again transferred to Fort D. A. Russell, Wyoming, for duty as post commissary. In June, 1912, he changed station to West Point and assumed duties as post commissary. On January 1, 1913, he was relieved from the subsistence department and ordered to Madison Barracks, for duty with the 3rd Infantry, remaining there until May, 1916, when he was ordered to Fort Slocum, N. Y., as Adjutant, Recruiting Depot.

On July 1, 1916, he was promoted to Major, and two months later was ordered to duty in New York City on recruiting duty. On September 1, 1917, he was ordered to Camp Sherman, Ohio, as camp inspector. He sailed for Europe on December 17, 1917, via Halifax and England and arrived in Paris on January 7, 1918, for duty as assistant to the Inspector General, line of communications. Later he served as Assistant to the Inspector General, service of supply, until June 25, 1919. Upon return to the United States he was ordered to the School of the Line, Fort Leavenworth, of which he is a distinguished graduate.

On July 1, 1920, he was promoted Colonel. In 1921 he graduated from the General Staff School.

From June 30, 1921, to June 30, 1922, he served as an instructor at the general service schools, and was then transferred to duty as executive officer, office of the Chief of Infantry, where he served until July 31, 1925. After a course of instruction as a student officer, refresher class, Fort Benning, he was assigned to duty at Plattsburg Barracks as commanding officer, 26th Infantry, and commanding officer of the post.

He remained on duty at Plattsburg Barracks until October 1, 1927, when he was detailed chief of staff, 1st Corps Area. He was stationed at Army Base, Boston, until July 5, 1931, when he was assigned to the 18th Infantry which he commanded until promoted to rank of Brigadier General on October 1, 1931. He was then assigned to command of the 14th Infantry Brigade and the post of Fort Snelling, and later commanded the 88th Division, Organized Reserves, in addition to the above duties until his relief from Fort Snelling on July 5, 1933, to become Assistant Chief of Staff, G-3, of the War Department General Staff. On October 1, 1936, he was promoted to the rank of Major General.

JOHNSON, E. Finley — Jurist and Legislator; former Associate Justice and at times Acting Chief Justice, Supreme Court of the Philippine Islands; deceased. (See page 942)

E. Finley Johnson

Born in Van Wert, Ohio, U.S., on June 24, 1861; the son of Abel Johnson, of Ohio;

graduated from the National University, Lebanon, Ohio, with the degree of Bachelor of Science, and from the University of Michigan, where he obtained his LL.B. in 1890, and his LL.M. in 1891. He married the former Miss Clara A. Smith on Sept. 6, 1883, by whom he had two children: Mrs. A. D. Gibbs and Atty. David Cecil Johnson (deceased).

He was a member of the Ohio House of Representatives, 1883-87; assistant instructor, and, later, instructor in law, 1890-94; associate professor, 1894-95, and professor of law, 1895-1901, Univ. of Michigan; came to the Philippines in 1901 and was appointed a Judge of the Court of First Instance of Pangasinan, and was made an Associate Justice of the Supreme Court on October 3, 1903, and resigned April 1, 1933. He was on several occasions Acting Chief Justice of the Supreme Court, being the highest ranking member of said high tribunal whose record of honest, efficient and faithful services for a period of thirty years in the supreme court is still unsurpassed by any one in the Philippine Judiciary. His decisions were highly respected by his colleagues and members of the Philippine Bar, although on one occasion he caused the ire of various Filipino leaders when, in one of his dissenting opinions on the mandamus proceedings instituted by Miguel R. Cornejo, municipal president of Pasay, petitioner, against Provincial Governor Andrés Gabriel and the Provincial Board of Rizal, respondents, dated November 17, 1920, published in Volume 41, pages 188-209, of the Philippine Reports, he says:

"It seems to me that if the hero of the Filipino people, José Rizal, could read the decision of the majority of this court and thereby learn that one of the citizens of the Philippine Islands has been deprived of his property and rights, without a hearing, he would turn over in his grave and, with a wailing cry, exclaim: 'A social cancer of a new type is again in my beloved land!'"

The full dissenting opinion, which was later upheld by the exoneration and reinstatement into office of the petitioner after a careful administrative investigation conducted by a special investigator from the office of the Governor-General, Hon. Francis Burton Harrison, who found the respondent, Provincial Governor of Rizal, guilty of "abuse of authority," reads as follows:

"JOHNSON, J., dissenting:

This is an original action for the writ of mandamus to require the respondents to reinstate the petitioner to his office as president of the municipality of Pasay, Province of Rizal.

The facts upon which the petition is based are not in dispute. They are not only admitted by the demurrer of the respondent Andres Gabriel but were expressly admitted by him in open court.

They are:

(1) That the petitioner was duly elected by the people of the municipality of Pasay as president for the period of three years from the 16th day of October, 1919.

(2) That the petitioner was suspended from said office on the 13th day of September, 1920, by the respondent Andres Gabriel, without notice, without a hearing, and without an opportunity to present any proof whatsoever in his defense.

The facts having been admitted, we have only a question of law to decide, to wit: Is the governor of a province authorized under the law to suspend a municipal president from his office, to which he has been legally elected for a period fixed by the law, without notice, without a hearing, and without an opportunity to present proof in his defense?

Section 3 (first paragraph) of the Jones Law provides "that no law shall be enacted in said Islands which shall deprive any person of life, liberty or property without due process of law, or deny to any person therein the equal protection of the law".

Section 2188 of Act No. 2711 provides:

"Section 2188. Supervisory authority of provincial governor over municipal officers.—The provincial governor shall receive and investigate complaints against municipal officers for neglect of duty, oppression, corruption, or other form of maladministration in office. For minor delinquency he may reprimand the offender; and if a more severe punishment seems to be desirable, he shall submit written charges touching the matter to the provincial board, and he may in such case suspend the officer (not being the municipal treasurer) pending action by the board, if in his opinion the charge be one affecting the official integrity of the officer in question. Where suspension is thus effected, the written charges against the officer shall be filed with the board within ten days."

It will be noted that while section 2188 provides for a suspension, it makes no provision for the procedure in such cases. In the absence of a procedure prescribed by the statute, we are of the opinion that the procedure marked by the Constitution (Jones Law) must be followed, to wit: That no person shall be deprived of his life, liberty, or property without due process of law. "Due process of law" has been defined many, many times, and simply means that before a man can be deprived of his life, liberty or property, he must be given an opportunity to defend himself.

The right to hold, occupy and exercise an office is as much a species of property within the protection of the law, as any other thing capable of possession; and, to wrongfully deprive one of it or unjustly withhold it, is an injury which the law can redress in as ample a manner as other wrong. And that right is regarded as a right within the protection of the Fourteenth Amendment to the Constitution of the United States, which says: "No State shall make or enforce any law which shall abridge the privileges or immunities of citizens of the United States; nor shall any State deprive any person of life, liberty or property without due process of law". (Pennoyar vs. Neff, 95 U. S., 714; Dent vs. West Virginia, 129 U.S., 114, 124; Huling vs. Kaw, etc. Ry. Co., 130 U.S., 559; Scott vs. Neal, 154 U. S. 34; New Orleans Waterworks vs. New Orleans, 164 U. S. 471, 480; Twining vs. New Jersey, 211 U. S., 78, 110; Haddock vs. Haddock, 201 U. S., 562, 167; Michigan Trust Co. vs. Ferry, 115 Fed. 667; Bunton vs. Lyford, 37 N. H., 512 (75 Am. Dec., 144); Foster vs. Kansas, 112 U. S., 201.)

The power to remove an officer who has been duly elected for a specified period can be exercised only, and for just cause, after the officer has had an opportunity for defense.

In the absence of express power, given in express words, the presumption must be in view of the provisions of the Jones Law above quoted, that the legislature intended that every officer duly elected for a fixed period should be entitled to hold his office until the expiration of such period, unless removed therefrom for cause, after a fair and impartial investigation in which he has been given an opportunity to defend himself. (1 Dillon, Mun. Corp. sec. 250; Field vs. Commonwealth, 32 Pa., 478; Stadler vs. Detroit, 13 Mich., 346; State vs. Bryce, 7 Ohio St., 2; Bagby's Case, 11 Coke, 93; Hobokan vs. Gear, 27 N. J., L., 265; Dullan vs. Wilson, 53 Mich., 392; People vs. Therrien, 80 Mich., 187; Robinson vs. Miner, 68 Mich., 549.)

It seems to me that if the hero of the Filipino people, Jose Rizal, could read the decision of the majority of this court and thereby learn that one of the citizens of the Philippine Islands has been deprived of his property and rights, without a hearing, he would turn over in his grave and, with a wailing cry, exclaim: "A social cancer of a new type is again in my beloved land!"

The question presented is not a new one. It has been discussed since long before the English people, in mass, met upon the fields of Runnymede and demanded and obtained from an unwilling king the Magna Charta, which has constituted the chief stone in the political edifice of all the civilized nations since that time (year 1215). In creating the constitution for the Filipino people, the United States Government expressly provided that no person, no Filipino, no citizen of the Philippine Islands, shall be deprived of his life or property without "due process of law."

The question has been presented to the courts many, many times, and without exception the said provision of the constitution has been sustained, except where the same constitution contains other provisions authorizing the suspension of officers without a hearing. In the Philippine Islands there is no authority in the constitution (the Jones Law) authorizing or justifying the statute in question. Not only is such a statute not authorized but it is absolutely prohibited by the provisions of the Jones Law quoted above. The Jones Law provides that no law shall be enacted, etc.

In a discussion of the subject before us we must bear in mind the distinction between an appointive and an elective officer. There are a few cases which hold that in case of an appointive officer, where the appointment is at the pleasure of the appointing power, his suspension or removal is exercisable at the mere discretion of the appointing power. (State vs. St. Louis, 90 Mo. 19; Field vs. Commonwealth, 22 Pa. St. 278; State vs. Johnson, 18 L. R. A. 416.)

Where a person is appointed to an office and is mere employee, whose position does not have the dignity of an office, and by virtue of his appointment, may be removed or suspended at the will of the appointing power, then, of course, the rule is different. Such persons are not officers but mere employees. (Thorpe vs. Langdon, 49 Mich. 673; People vs. McDill, 15 Mich. 182; Portman vs. State Board, etc., 55 Mich. 258; Attorney General vs. Cain 84 Mich. 223.)

On the other hand the authorities are practically unanimous, where the appointment or election is made for a definite term, and the removal is to be for cause, that the power of removal or suspension cannot be exercised without due notice and hearing. (Meechem on Public Officers, sec. 454; Dullan vs. Wilson, 53 Mich. 392 (51 Am. Rep. 128); Bagot's Case 11 Coke, 39; King vs. Caskin, 8 Term Rep., 209; Ramshay's Case Ad. & E. (N.S.), 190; Williams vs. Bagot, 3 B. & C. 786; Queen vs. Archbishop, 1 Ell. & El. 545; Page vs. Hardin, 8 B. Mon. (Ky.) 672; Willard's Appeal 4 R. L., 601; Field vs. Commonwealth, 22 Pa. St. 478; State vs. Bryce, 7 Ohio, 82; Foster vs. Kansas, 112 U. S. 201; Kenard vs. Louisiana, 97 U. S. 486.)

The constitution and laws of the Philippine Islands having created the office of president of the different municipalities and having fixed definitely the tenure of said office, the legislature, by virtue of the provisions of the Jones Law, is prohibited from enacting any law which would justify any individual in the state in removing him from office without first presenting charges against him and giving him an opportunity to be heard. (Removal of Public Officers, 25 Am. Law Rev., 201; State vs. Commonwealth, 3 Metcalf (Ky.) 237; Page vs. Hardin (supra); Brown vs. Grover, 6 Bush (Ky.) 1; Commonwealth vs. Gamble, 62 Pa. 242; State vs. Draper, 30 Mo., 253; State vs. Thoman, 10 Kansas 191; State vs. McMeely, 24 La. Ann. 19; Cooley, Const. Lim. 6th ed. p. 78; People vs. Draper, 15 N.Y. 532; State vs. Williams, 5 Wis., 308; State vs. Baker, 28 Wis., 71; State vs. Hewitt, 16 L. R. A., 413.)

In the case of State vs. Hewitt (16 L. R. A. 413) the attorney general of the State of South Dakota admitted in open court "that it is true, as contended by the relator, that the preponderance of authorities is against the removal of the officer for cause, whose term of office is fixed by law without formal charges and a hearing thereon on timely notice."

Mr. Justice Bailey of the English Court, in the case of Williams vs. Bagot (3 Barn and C. 785), said: "It is contrary to common sense of justice that any party could be deprived of his rights and be concluded unheard."

Every officer in the Philippine Government who has been legally elected for a fixed period has a right to be heard under the provisions of the Jones Law before he can be deprived of his rights. He has a right to be heard and to explain.

In the absence of express constitutional authority, the Philippine Legislature is prohibited from enacting a law by which any officer elected by the people for a definite period may be suspended or removed from his office without first having been given an opportunity to be heard and to present whatever defense he may have. (Jones Law, sec. 2; Dullan vs. Wilson, 53 Mich. 392; Hallgren vs. Campbell, 82 Mich. 235; Jacques vs. Little, 51 Kansas, 309.)

In the case of Dullan vs. Wilson (53 Mich. 392) the Supreme Court of the State of Michigan, with whom Mr. Justice Cooley agreed, said: "We have examined carefully the authorities cited upon the brief of the learned counsel for relator in support of the position that no notice is required to be given, and that the action of the executive is final and conclusive. It is sufficient to say, without commenting specially upon them, that the reasoning of those cases does not commend itself to our judgment. They appear to us to be opposed, not only to the decided weight of authority, but also to the fundamental principles of justice."

In the case of Jallgren vs. Campbell (82 Mich. 235), the Supreme Court of the State of Michigan said: "We have not found any case where an officer who is appointed for a fixed term has been held to be removable except for cause, and wherever cause must be assigned for the removal of the officer, he is entitled to notice and a chance to defend himself."

In the case of Han vs. Boston (142 Mass. 90) it was held that no power to remove or suspend an officer could be exercised until after notice and an opportunity by the official in question to be heard in his own defense.

In the case of State vs. St. Louis (90 Mo. 19) the Supreme Court said: "When the removal is not discretionary, but must be for a cause, . . . and nothing is said as to the procedure, a specification of the charges, notice, and an opportunity to be heard are essential."

Mr. Dillon, in his valuable work on Municipal Corporations (sec. 256) says: "Where the right of removal or suspension is confined to specific causes, such power cannot be exercised until there have been formulated charges against the officer, notice thereof, and an opportunity for defense." (Higgs vs. McBride, 17 Ore. 640; State vs. Hawkins, 44 Ohio St. 98.)

In the case of State vs. Hastings (16 L.R.A. 781, 797) the Supreme Court of Nebraska, after citing and commenting not only upon the cases cited above but also upon other cases, said: "It seems plain to us that the doctrine of these cases is in accord with the weight of authority and is supported by the soundest reasons."

It is true that a few cases can be found which hold that an officer may be suspended under a statute, without notice and without a hearing. But it is believed that an examination of each of such cases will show that such statutes are authorized by the constitution of the particular state. (Crimes vs. District Judge, 101 Tex., 36; Poe vs. State, 72 Tex., 625; State vs. Johnson, 18 L. R.A. 410.)

All that has been said above relates only to the petition for mandamus against the respondent, the provincial governor of Rizal. I am fully convinced that a great preponderance of the jurisprudence upon the questions which I have here discussed shows clearly that the petitioner herein was suspended in a manner not authorized by law, and that the writ of mandamus prayed for should be issued, directing the reinstatement of the petitioner.

With reference to the respondent provincial board, the record shows that it was not a party to the acts complained of in the petition in the present case. The petition, therefore, as against the provincial board should be denied."

Mr. Justice Johnson was a champion of democracy and social justice. But like the late Governor-General Leonard Wood, he was badly misunderstood by a great majority of our political leaders. He was once severely criticised in the Manila newspapers and denounced before the Philippine Senate for allegedly meddling in politics, when, in the early part of 1921, rumors were spread in all parts of the country to the effect that he was aspiring for the office of Governor-General of the Philippines as successor to Governor Harrison, when he had not as yet resigned from his office as a member of the supreme court. The criticism was highly unjust and unfounded and was made at a time when he was absent from the Islands and was not in a position to defend himself; yet, upon his return, he was visited by the same person responsible for the attack, who made a verbal explanation for the wrong he had done, and the grand old man willingly accepted the written apology of the gentleman, and thereafter, they became good friends until he returned to his homeland and died at Palo Alto, California, on July 31, 1933.

The deceased was a member of the Board of Regents, University of the Philippines, and author of "Johnson on Bills and Notes," and editor of second edition, Norton on Bills and Notes; and third edition, Bliss on Code Pleadings. He was a Republican by political affiliation.

He came to the Philippines during the early part of American occupation and established his own office "The Standard Painter," in the city of Manila, where he made a name as a German painter. Later he enlarged his business by introducing "Art Glass" which he manufactures in his own factory, and the "Art Neon Lights," which have a great demand in modern business advertising. As a businessman, he has won the confidence of his customers and the respect of his employees. He now owns a number of real estate property in the city and suburb, besides his business establishments, for which he pays a large tax to the government every year. As a civic-spirited resident of Pasay, he once tried to donate ₱2,000.00 to the Municipal Government for the opening and construction of a proposed municipal road between Dominga and Taft Avenue Extension, but for political and other reasons such a plan mapped out by the town executive in 1930 met with strong opposition from the neighbors of the place whose property would be affected thereby, and the work already commenced at an enormous expense had to be discontinued for lack of support from the provincial government concerned.

He is married to Pilar Gonzales y Roco, by whom he has six children: Paul, Ramón, Ludwig, Peter, Lothar and Gustaph. A Roman Catholic.

Born in Mexico, Pampanga, on January 5, 1887; son of Teodoro Lagman and Simona Canda. He received his primary education from his home town under Mr. Frank Brucht, who sent him to San Fernando, Pampanga in 1903, where he was appointed a teacher after two months. People were then wondering how a blind person could teach, but Mr. Lagman did his duty satisfactorily that in

Rogerio Lagman

1909 he was chosen to become one of the two government pensionados who were sent to the United States in 1909, the other one being Leandro Fernandez, now professor and dean of the U. P. College of Liberal Arts.

Mr. Lagman attended the School for the Deaf and Blind at Berkeley, California, U.S.A., where in recognition for his exceptional talent he was made a member and later captain of the debating team which won several contests under his leadership. Upon his return to the Philippine immediately after his graduation in 1911, he was appointed an insular teacher, School for the Deaf and Blind, of which Miss Rice was principal. He took and passed the Junior Teacher's examination, and also the Senior Teacher's examination in which 11 Americans and 44 Filipinos took part but only ten of them passed, and Mr. Lagman occupied the third place in the rating and the highest in thesis.

He resigned from the government after sixteen years' service as teacher, and joined the H. E. Heacock Company as chief agent of the contract department in jewelry business. In 1921, he organized the Ester Studio on Calle Azcarraga, and later changed it to "Juan de la Cruz Studio", which is now located at the Padilla Building, 428 Ave. Rizal, Manila.

Mr. Lagman is married and has five children.

salary of P100.00 a month, and, after three months of satisfactory service, his salary was raised to P150.00 a month, but, in his desire to acquire more experience in surgical cases and in treating contagious diseases, he transferred to the San Lazaro Hospital, where he worked with Dr. Catalino Gavino, the present director, in 1918.

He was later appointed a Surgeon, Phil. Health Service and, upon passing the required examination for Public Health Service, he was sent to Butuan Public Hospital, Mindanao, as director of said institution, where he worked for eight months, after which he returned to Manila and was assigned to the Meissac Health Station as medical officer. Enjoying the confidence of high government officials, he was chosen as Official Physician to the Legislative party to Baguio headed by the late Representative Mariano P. Leuterio in 1921, and was later proposed for promotion to the position of District Health Officer at Daet, Camarines Norte, but he declined the offer and preferred to stay in Manila, where a few months later he established a private office.

Since 1924 he has conducted his office at Lack & Davis Bldg., where he is still located.

The Legislative party in Baguio, 1921

LEON, Dr. Felix de—Physician, Farm Owner, and Writer; res., 944 Bilibid Viejo, Quiapo, Manila; tel. 2-59-05.

Born in San Miguel, Bulacan, on May 2, 1870; son of Don Pelagio de León and Dña. Eladia M. Santiago; completed his elementary education in the private school of Dr. Benedicto Luna and his secondary course in the Colegio de San Juan de Letran, graduating with the degree of A.B. in 1891.

He left Manila for Spain on August 21, 1894, and enrolled at the College of Medicine of Barcelona and Madrid, where he obtained his M.D. degree in 1896. During his stay in Spain he collaborated with Don Marcelo H. del Pilar, Graciano Lopez Jaena, Dr. Dominador Gomez, Mariano Ponce, and Dr. Antonio Vergel de Dios in publishing the only Filipino pro-Independence paper, "La Solidaridad," which was founded by Lopez Jaena and edited by

Dr. Felix de León

Marcelo H. del Pilar, who was known by his his pen name Plaridel and who wrote the Filipinos' petition praying for the restoration of parliamentary representation of the Philippines to the Cortes of Spain, which petition read in part as follows:

"...In exchange for the loyalty of so many generations; in exchange for so much blood shed for Spain, the present generation does not ask anything which will mean a sacrifice to the metropolis of its ideals, nothing which should impose any burden on its interests at all; it does not ask anything but a little consideration; it only asks to have its voice heard, that it be allowed to express its necessities by means of representatives freely elected by the vote of the interested parties."

Dr. de León did not only help socially but also financially his countrymen who initiated the movement abroad for the political and religious emancipation of the Philippines after their efforts to secure a fair treatment and equality of civil rights from the Spaniards in the Islands became futile. He is the only living witness of the hardships the Filipinos had in Spain, as his colleagues, Marcelo H. del Pilar, Graciano Lopez Jaena, Pascual H. Poblete, Dr. Dominador Gomez, Gen. Fernando Canon, Juan Luna, and others, have already died.

He had visited important cities of France, Italy, Portugal and other European countries before he returned to the Philippines in 1905.

Dr. de León married the former Miss Ascención Soriano. He has several children, two of whom, José de León and Cecilio de León, are now practicing attorneys. LIM, Vicente — Brigadier General; Assistant Chief of Staff, G-1; Chief, Defense Plans Division, Philippine Army; and Vice-President, Philippine Columbian Association; res., 168 Vito Cruz, Malate, Manila tel. 5-65-22.

Brigadier-General Vicente Lim

Brigadier General Vicente Lim who retired from the United States Army with the rank of Lieutenant Colonel, has been accorded a fitting recognition for his distinguished service by his assignment to the General Staff of the Philippine Army as Chief of the War Plans Division. With his well-rounded military education and long experience as an officer of the United States Army, he comes to the Philippine Army fully prepared to handle the duties of his position. Brigadier General Lim has just reached his prime and his retirement from the United States Army was not in the sense that his services were no longer needed there, rather it was due to the great need of his experience by our own Commonwealth Government and the urgings of his own conscience that now is the time for him to render service to his country.

Brigadier General Lim was born on April 5, 1888, in Calamba, Laguna. After obtaining his early education in the public school of his home town, he came to Manila and enrolled in the Philippine Normal School where he graduated in 1908. Although the educational attainment of a graduate in the Philippine Normal School in 1908 was equivalent only to a completion of the Second Year of the present High School course, he participated in the competitive examination for appointment as cadet to West Point. He passed the examination with flying colors, was sent to the United States and on March 1, 1910, he entered the United States Military Academy at West Point, New York, where he graduated on June 11, 1914.

On June 12, 1914, he was commissioned second lieutenant in the Philippine Scouts, United States Army, and ordered to return to the Philippines with permission to pass Europe. He was touring Russia at the outbreak of the World War and had the thrilling experience of returning to the Philippines by way of the Trans-Siberian Railway. Arriving in the Philippines, he was first assigned to Fort San Pedro, Iloilo. He was promoted to first lieutenant on April 2, 1918; to captain on December 18, 1922; to major on April 29, 1923, and to lieutenant colonel on November 1, 1935. In 1916, he was on special detail with the Insular Government as instructor in the Philippine Military Academy at Baguio. It was while he was instructor in Baguio that young Lieutenant Lim first met the former Miss Pilar Hidalgo, whom he married later, and who in her own way has achieved celebrity no less than that of her husband.

General Lim remained as instructor in Baguio until 1917, when he was assigned to Jolo, Sulu. Then, followed assignments to Pettit Barracks, Zamboanga, and to Fort William McKinley, Rizal. In 1926 General Lim went to the United States where he took the advanced course in the Infantry School at Fort Benning, Georgia, where he graduated in 1927. Then he went to Fort Leavenworth, Kansas, where he graduated from the Command and General Staff School in 1928. As a culmination to these advanced studies he was ordered to the Army War College at Washington, D.C., where he graduated in 1929. Returning to the Philippines in the same year, he was detailed as Commandant of the Reserve Officers' Training Corps Unit at San Juan de Letran College. It was while on special detail in this college that he was promoted to the rank of Lieutenant Colonel on November 1, 1935. He remained here until July 1, 1936, when he was appointed to his present post as Chief of the War Plans Division, Philippine Army, with the rank of Brigadier General.

General Lim has the distinction of being first Filipino graduate of West Point, and is the only Filipino who graduated from the United States Army War College. The heavy responsibilities in the present assignment of Brigadier General Lim augur for him more brilliant achievements in the Philippine Army.

Dr. Alexander Lippay

Born of Italian and Hungarian parents in Venice, Alexander Lippay received his entire education in Vienna. He studied law and philosophy at the University of Vienna for five years and at the same time studied musical science and composition at the State Academy of Music under Franz Schreker. After completion of his studies, he entered upon a career as operatic conductor and was associated in this capacity with the operas in Frankfort, Cologne, and Mannheim for a number of years.

In 1925, upon the recommendation of his former teacher, Franz Schreker, who had become Director of the State Academy of Music at Berlin-Charlottenburg, he was offered and accepted the position of Professor of Music and Director of the Conservatory of Music, University of the Philippines, which he held for a period of five years, his first two-year contract having been renewed for another term of three years, which expired in 1930. Among his five and last graduates that year was Rodolfo Cornejo, who studied composition under him and whose composition entitled "The Seasons," Song Cycle for Soprano and String Orchestra, was presented by him in a symphony concert given at the Metropolitan Theater December 18, 1934, with Jovita Fuentes as soloist.

In May, 1930, he founded the Academy of Music of Manila, of which he became the director and vice president, and the Academy has since then produced several graduates. Dr. Lippay has taught music since he was seventeen years old, and many of his former pupils in piano, harmony, counterpoint, composition and orchestration, both in Germany and in the Philippines, are now active in the musical life.

Several of his vocal and orchestral compositions have been successfully performed by leading choral and orchestral organizations in Europe, and have been published in the "Universal Edition" (Vienna). In the Philippines he has presented a number of orchestral work based on native songs: Miniatures for Orchestra of Philippine Folk Songs; Variations for Orchestra on the Philippine National Hymn; Kaleidoscope; Tone Pictures for the Orchestra; Land of the Half Way Sun; Variations and Fugue, based on an Ifugao melody; and an arrangement of the Visayan song "Palad Sa Kabus," for ten wind instruments and viola; and Hymn to the Rising Sun.

Since 1926 he has conducted the series of symphony concerts sponsored each season by the Asocacion Musical de Filipinas and, at present, by the Manila Symphony Society, of which he is musical director and member of the board of trustees.

LOPEZ, Sixto — Agriculturist; city res., 932 Singalong, Malate, Manila; tel. 5-45-96; provincial address, Balayan, Batangas.

Don Sixto Lopez, one of the Filipino patriots who defended the Philippine cause through the press abroad for many years, before, during and after the Philippine revolutions of 1896 and 1898, was born in the municipality of Balayan, province of Batangas, on April 6, 1863. He is the son of Natalio Lopez and Maria Castelo, both natives of said town. He received his primary education from the public school of Balayan in 1875, and was sent to Manila by his parents to study in the Ateneo Municipal de Manila, where he completed his elementary course, and later he studied under a private teacher, Dr. Cipriano Gonzales, who had his school in Manila in 1880. Two years later he enrolled at the College of San Juan de Letran and then transferred to the University of Santo Tomas, where he completed his secondary education in 1884, returning afterwards to his home town where he spent eight years as agriculturist, helping his parents attend to their vast interests as farm owners.

It was during his stay in Balayan when he read Noli Me Tangere and El Filibusterismo and learned much of Rizal's plan to establish a colony in Borneo where he could start the movement to free the Filipino people from Spanish domination. He then joined the Masonry and received several letters from Dr. Rizal, but the local authorities became suspicious of Mr. Lopez' conduct that an order was issued to make a search of his home where said books and letters were discovered and seized as evidence against him. To avoid arrest, he took refuge in the house of Don Justo Guido, then a bookkeeper of "La Insular" in Manila, and in 1892 when Dr. Rizal was deported to Dapitan, Mindanao, he took the s.s. Esmeralda which left for Hong-kong in July of same year. He lived in that British colony for eight months, and in 1893 he left for the United States of America, saw the World's Fair at Chicago, and stayed there for six months, after which he went to Paris and then to London, England.

While in England he heard of the Philippine revolution against Spain in 1896 and he lost no time in issuing press statements which were released in various newspapers of London to enlighten the world of the truth about the social, economic and political conditions then obtaining in the Philippine Islands under the Spanish rule. He had won the admiration of several English people and other foreigners who read his defense of the Philippine cause, and an Australian writer by the name of Thomas T. Patterson offered his services to him as his private secretary.

In 1898, Don Felipe Agoncillo, who was then appointed by General Emilio Aguinaldo as special envoy and minister plenipotentiary to Washington, D. C., wrote a letter to Don Sixto Lopez at London, England, inviting the latter to join him in the United States. From London, Don Sixto Lopez went to Washington, D.C., where he met Don Felipe Agoncillo, and the two made efforts to contact the President and the Secretary of State in their official capacities as representatives of the Philippine Revolutionary Government with a view to seeking the recognition of the Independence of the Philippine Islands, but they failed to have an audience. Together with Juan Luna, the painter, Don Felipe Agoncillo and Don Sixto Lopez went to Paris, France, where the terms of the Treaty of Peace were then being discussed by the representatives of the United States and Spain, and they tried to present their objection to said treaty and to make their demand for the recognition of the Filipino rights to become free and independent as a result of the revolution which they won against Spain. Being unsuccessful in their attempt at Paris, they returned to Washington, D.C., in the early part of 1899 in order to file their protest against the approval of said treaty by the Congress of the United States. Dr. José Lozada, Antonio Ma. Regidor, and Mariano Marti, an aide-de-camp to General Riego de Dios, were then in California as Philippine envoys, but the news of the hostilities between American and Filipino forces reached them in time and they immediately left the United States for Canadian territory where Don Felipe went to meet them while Don Sixto Lopez returned to England where he continued his work as a Filipino propagandist.

In 1899, however, an American anti-Imperialist leader by the name of Fiske Warren, who read much of Don Sixto Lopez' articles in London papers, invited the latter to stay in the United States and paid his expenses while he was his guest at Boston, Mass. Don Sixto accepted the invitation and with his private secretary, Mr. Patterson, he resided in Boston where he continued his pro-Philippine independence activities under the auspices of his benefactor, Mr. Warren.

In 1901, Don Sixto learned of the capture of General Aguinaldo and at the same time he heard of Apolinario Mabini's banishment to Guam. He then sent a telegram to Mabini at Guam, informing the latter of the news of Aguinaldo's capture and oath of allegiance to the United States and inviting him to go to Boston, but "irreconcilable" Mabini had already returned to the Philippines before the telegram reached Guam. Later, Don Sixto received words from his parents telling him that his brothers, Lorenzo, Cipriano and Manuel were imprisoned by the American military governor to induce him to return to Manila. He immediately took the first steamship that left for the Philippines, but when he arrived at Hong-Kong he heard the news that he too was in danger of being arrested, so he returned to the United States and from there he left for England. He came to Manila in 1903 but because he refused to take oath of allegiance to the United States, he was deported two months after. In 1905, however, he heard of the Taft committee coming to the Philippines and he went ahead to Japan where he waited for said delegation and he took the same boat to Manila only to visit his mother, after which he left for London again. Like General Artemio Ricarte, Don Sixto refused to take oath of allegiance to the United States up to the present time, and he was permitted to return to the Philippines in 1915 as an alien. He also stayed in Saigon where he represented Mr. Lichauco in his cattle business as purchasing agent. He donated to the City of Manila's botanical garden a tiger and two leopards which he sent here from Saigon.

In the general elections of 1934, he opposed the candidacy for re-election of Senate President Manuel L. Quezon as candidate for senator from the fifth senatorial district, although he had not taken his oath of allegiance to the United States of America as required by law; and despite all the handicaps he had on account of old age, he obtained a big number of votes from his own province, Batangas, where President Quezon defeated him by about 600 votes only.

TO THE MEMORY

A MODEL FILIPINO CITIZEN

AND A PATRIOT

Filipino Patriot

General Miguel Malvar, the last general to surrender during the revolution against the United States, was born in a barrio at the foot of legendary Mt. Makiling, municipality of Santo Tomás, province of Batangas, in 1865. Since his childhood he had shown his love for work, gathering forage from the neighboring fields which he used to carry on his shoulders and sold in the población. At the age of twelve years, during vacations, he engaged himself in the purchase and sale of goods the profit of which he turned over to his mother. And to make his work more productive, he also raised chickens in which industry he specialized to the extent that he could distinguish his roosters by the tune of their crowing.

He conducted his business personally and lived aloof from all kinds of ostentation and vanity, and the spirit of thrift and economy became a part of his daily habits that he never permitted himself to spend more than was absolutely necessary, so much so that he provided himself with only two suits which he had to use alternately: while he wore the clean one, he sent the dirty to the laundry.

Inspired by love of country, he launched himself to the battle-fields by placing himself under the command of the Revolutionary leader, Don Emilio Aguinaldo, and fought the enemies with all courage in defense of his mother land. He became one of the strongest generals of the Philippine revolutionary army, and the last general to surrender to the American forces. General Malvar was a model citizen in time of war as well as in time of peace. He was a hard-working man, humble in his manner, firm in his conviction, and loyal to his duty.

When the war was over and peace and tranquility reigned once more throughout the country, General Malvar renewed his agricultural and business activities with greater fervor and enthusiasm until he succeeded in acquiring an extensive farm which he improved for the benefit, comfort and happiness of his children. After he has done his duty towards God, his Country, and his Family, he died on October 13, 1911, and his people covered his final resting place with eternus semprevivus.

He was married to the former Miss Paula Maloles, by whom he had fourteen children: Josefa, Bernabe, Aurelia, Marciano, Victoria, Maximo, Crispina, Esmeralda, Enriqueta, Constanca, Miguel, Malaya, Ysabel and Pablo.

General Malvar received his elementary education from a private school of his home town and his secondary training from the college conducted by Father Valerio Malabanan, well-known pedagogue during the latter part of Spanish regime. He spoke and wrote Spanish so well that he was made directoreillo (municipal secretary) during the administration of his father-in-law as Municipal Captain (municipal president) of Santo Tomás, Batangas.

GENERAL MIGUEL MALVAR

The last general to surrender

Dr. POTENCIANO MALVAR*Agriculturist, Physician, and Statesman.San Pablo, Laguna

"Don Poten", the grand old man of San Pablo, Laguna — agriculturist, physician, and statesman, brother of the famous revolutionary general of Batangas—was born in Santo Tomas, Batangas, on December 11, 1869; son of Máximo Malvar and Tiburcia Carpio; married to the former Miss Eusebia Fule, of San Pablo, Laguna. He received his elementary education under Father Valeriano Malabanan and later under Professor B. Reyes' private school where he was an honored pupil in mathematics. He then went to the city of Manila and enrolled in San Juan de Letran College, and later in the University of Santo Tomás, studying medicine. He went to Spain where he obtained his degree of Licentiate in Medicine from the University of Barcelona.

At the outbreak of hostilities between the Filipinos and Americans, he joined the Filipino forces as an officer in the medical corps. When peace was declared, he was appointed Health Officer of the Sanitary Division of San Pablo, Laguna. He was elected a Deputy to the Philippine Assembly from the first district of Laguna, 1909-12, and was appointed Provincial Governor of Laguna, 1912-14. During his administration as Chief Executive of the province, public school buildings in the different municipalities of Laguna, including the High School, were erected, and the San Pablo-Sta. Cruz road, via Nagcarlan, was opened. Artesian wells were also drilled and used in almost all towns of Laguna. It was also during his administration that the "Malvar Waterworks System" was established. He was also a Municipal Councillor of San Pablo for a long time, and is the author of the ordinance for the urbanization and standardization of said town.

DR. POTENCIANO MALVAR

He was vice-president of the Coconut Planters Association and was acting president of the same for some time; honorary member of the Young Men's Christian Association, and the Boy Scouts Association; chairman of the Laguna provincial committee of the Nacionalista party in the general elections of 1937. He is a Nacionalista (Pro-Independencia) by political affiliation, and is considered one of the wealthiest men of San Pablo.

Attorney Manalang was born in Masantol, Pampanga, in 1900. He finished his primary, intermediate and secondary courses in the public schools and graduated as a salutatorian from the high school. He qualified in a civil service examination and was appointed a clerk in the Bureau of Public Works, where he remained for several years while studying law in the Philippine Law School, National University, where he obtained his LL.B. degree. He took and successfully passed the bar examinations and resigned from his position to practice his law profession. On one occasion he was a candidate for City Councilor of Manila and obtained a big number of votes although he did not win. He is at present a Public Defender in the province of Pampanga with headquarters at San Fernando, Pampanga. He is a Nacionalista by political affiliation, and a Roman Catholic by religion.

MANALO, Rev. Felix Y.—Head Minister, Iglesia ni Kristo (Church of Christ); central office and residence, 42 Broadway, New Manila, San Juan, Rizal; tels. 6-84-18 and 6-87-27.

Born in Barrio Calsada, Tagig, Rizal, on May 10, 1886; son of Mariano Ysagun and Bonifacia Manalo. He received his primary education from a barrio school conducted by one "Maestrong Cario" of Tagig. He was a farm worker, a fisher, a photographer, and a hatter before he joined the Methodist Episcopal Church in 1904 and attended the classes given by the institution. Later, he transferred to the Ellinwood Presbyterian School, and then to the Christian Mission, where he was made an evangelist. Not satisfied with the teachings and doctrines of the aforementioned churches, he joined the Seventh Day Adventists and continued his studies in the Scriptures and was made a minister. He was likewise dissatisfied with the teachings and doctrines of the Adventists, so he established his own religious denomination, known as "Iglesia ni Kristo" (Church of Christ) with a handful of followers in 1914, but since that time he has enlisted thousands of members, particularly in the provinces around Manila. As an evidence of progress he has achieved so far, he has been able to build a beautiful mansion in one of the aristocratic suburbs of Manila and erected chapels in various towns of Central Luzon. He even travelled abroad to further his studies in religion, and has since his return to the Philippines been conducting his school for the necessary training of his preachers and ministers. His followers are well disciplined, even to the extent of making them vote, whether they like it or not, for the candidates the Church chooses to support in any election for public offices. Thus, Don Felix is not only a religious leader, but also a "Political Dictator" of his Church followers.

She received her primary and elementary education from the Colegio de la Concordia, studied English at Calle Victoria, Intramuros, then transferred to the Philippine Normal School, where she graduated as an insular teacher in 1905. She then studied medicine and graduated from the University of the Philippines with the degree of M. D. in 1912. After graduation she served in the Philippine General Hospital as a resident physician, and in 1913 she married Dr. Potenciano Guazon, who died a few years later.

She was appointed an assistant instructor in bacteriology and pathology, College of Medicine, University of the Philippines, in 1914, and was promoted to instructor in 1916. She attended the School of Tropical Medicine and obtained her degree in Doctor of Tropical Medicine, the first woman in the Philippines to possess that distinction, 1916. She was appointed Dean of Women, College of Medicine, the same year, and she organized the Women's Medico-Pharmaceutico-Dental Association, of which she was elected the first president. She also organized the U. P. Red Cross in 1917 and the conferences on first aid to the injured. She instituted the uniform of the U. P. girls and was elected Secretary-Treasurer of the U. P. Alumni, 1918-19, and Fellow abroad, 1919-21. She took post graduate work in the Universities of Chicago, Columbia, and Harvard, and visited the Universities of Pennsylvania and Johns Hopkins. She also took post graduate courses in the Universities of Paris and London, visited the hospitals and universities of Berlin and Barcelona, and returned to Manila in May, 1921. She was appointed Associate Professor of Bacteriology and Pathology, 1922. In 1927, she was made Professor of Bacteriology and Pathology, College of Medicine, University of the Philippines.

She was the first president of the Women's Medical Association of the Philippines, 1921-22, and president of the National League of Filipino Women, 1922. She organized civic conferences for young women and factory girls.

Dr. Mendoza-Guazon was a member of the First Pan-Pacific Women's Conference, Honolulu, 1928; became first woman Regent of the University of the Philippines, and president of the Philippine Association of University Women, 1928; member of the House Beautiful Contest since 1929; first woman member of the Text-Book Board, 1931; and member of the delegation to Hankow, China, for the Pan-Pacific Relations, 1931. She retired from active service in the University of the Philippines in 1936.

She is a noted traveler, a writer, and a social worker. She is the author of many scientific papers published in various magazines. Her "Notas de Viaje" won the Zobel prize on Spanish literature in 1930. She is also the author of "My Ideal Filipino Girl," a compilation of her writings and speeches, and "The Development and Progress of the Filipino Women." She is also an accomplished pianist.

PLANAS, (Miss) Carmen — City Councilor, Municipal Board of Manila; res., 966 Folgueras, Tondo, Manila; tel. 4-76-04.

Miss Carmen Planas, the first lady member of the municipal board of Manila and a member of the 1939-graduating class of the College of Law, University of the Philippines, was born in Tondo, Manila, on March 23, 1914; the daughter of Iluminado Planas and Concepcion Lam. She finished the primary course in three years, graduating as valedictorian from the Zaragoza Elementary School, and also as valedictorian of the intermediate department of the Colegio de Sta. Rosa. She was one of the honor graduates of high school from the Holy Ghost College in 1933. She entered the University of the Philippines in June, 1933, and in the debates held by said institution of learning she won the Gold Medals donated by Floor Leader Romero and Speaker Montilla, of the National Assembly, and obtained an Honorable Mention in an oratorical contest held by same university. As a junior law student, she was one of those who criticised the President's attitude against the Judiciary in the famous Cuervo-Barredo case, which was the subject of a demonstration held in 1937 by University students at the Mehan Garden, Manila, where she figured as the only girl speaker among those who voiced their protests against such attitude of the Chief Executive of the Islands.

Miss Carmen Planas

She was nominated one of the ten official candidates of the Young Philippines for city councilor and was elected to that office on December 14, 1937, occupying the second highest place in that election in which the women of the Philippines took part for the first time in our political history. Since she assumed office as the first lady member of the municipal board of Manila, she has introduced several measures for the improvement of the city, in general, and of the social, economic and health conditions of the laborers, in particular, of which she is a staunch defender. Her popularity, both as a speaker and a social leader, increased day by day not only in the city of Manila but also in other parts of the Islands where she was invited to speak as guest of honor on various occasions; and her fame as a girl politician spread like wild fire throughout the country and abroad, when, after the 1938 national elections, she published an article in a Manila newspaper, November 17, 1938, criticizing for the second time the President of the Philippines for alleged meddling in politics in favoring certain candidates of the Nacionalista party, and denouncing election frauds and other irregularities.

Her statements did not escape the attention of Malacañang Palace, which immediately ordered an administrative investigation against her, but she refused to submit herself to the jurisdiction of the Bureau of Civil Service, stating among other things in her answer to Secretary Jorge B. Vargas that she is an officer elected by the people of Manila and not appointed by the President of the Philippines, and claiming that the latter, in so ordering her investigation by a subordinate officer, Commissioner José Gil of the Civil Service, directly or indirectly assumes the dual role of an "accuser" and a "judge" at the same time, and that her statements in question were a mere expression of the current popular opinion she made in good faith and without any malice whatsoever, and that they do not constitute an offense or specific causes to warrant her suspension or removal from office. As a private citizen, she believes it her duty to protect the Constitution of the Philippines against such election anomalies which she learned from reliable sources through the press; and her civic courage, her dauntless spirit, and her firm attitude in maintaining her stand, regardless of her sex and age as a young woman who has recently emerged in politics, have indeed won the highest admiration of her people.

Romualdo C. Quimpo

Born in Naguilian, Isabela, on February 6, 1899. In his childhood days, his parents moved to Kalibo, Capiz, where the lad received his early education. After completing his first year secondary course in Capiz Provincial High School, young Romualdo left for Manila and enrolled at the Manila Institute.

He transferred to the Philippine School of Commerce where in 1920 he finished his stenographic course. Then he entered the Manila University where he received the title of Associate in Business Administration in 1925, and the degree of Bachelor of Laws in 1926. He was admitted to the bar the following year.

During his school days in Manila, he was a self-supporting student. He worked in the law offices of J. Courtney Hixon, Abad Santos, Camus, Recto and Delgado. His public career started when he served as Justice of the Peace of the Municipal Districts of Malita, Samal, Caburan and Batulaki, Davao, from 1929 to 1934. It was at this time, as an administrator of justice, that he became popular and highly esteemed by the people of Davao for his courtesy and fair dealings. In 1934, he was elected member of the Provincial Board of Davao, and in 1935, he ran for Assemblyman and won.

Assemblyman Quimpo was the father of the bill granting charter to Davao which His Excellency, the President of the Philippines, signed on October 16, 1936. In the first National Assembly, he was the chairman of the Committee on Privileges, and member of the Committees on Appropriations, Codes, Forests, Mindanao and Special Provinces, Navigation, and Ways and Means.

SCHOBER, William J. — Businessman; proprietor, Legaspi Garden, director, Nalusitan Mines; res., 43 Villavuel, Pasay, Rizal; tel. 5-10-46.

Born in Milwaukee, Wisconsin, U. S., on March 13, 1879; son of Henry and Mary (Shalda) Schober; educated in the schools of his home city and in the States of Michigan and Arizona. He arrived in the Philippines in 1899 with Company K, 37th Infantry, U.S. Volunteers; served most of the time in Laguna and Tayabas; hiked from Sta. Cruz, Laguna to Atimonan, Tayabas; lived several days on carabao meat which the Army men had to roast on open fire and oftentimes ate such roasted meat without salt during those days of their campaign against the Philippine Revolutionary forces in the Sierra Madre.

He was discharged from the U. S. Army on January 12, 1901; character, excellent, with several good recommendations from his officers. He then worked as captain of large steel lighter owned by the China Navigation Co., 1901-

Wm. J. Schober

02; appointed guard at Bilibid Prison, Manila, 1902-04; transferred to Quartermaster Department, U. S. Army, as watchman in 1904; promoted two years later to assistant superintendent of all land transportation of the U. S. Army in the Philippines with a personnel consisting of 400 Americans and 600 Filipinos and 4,000 heads of mules and horses under his charge. He resigned from his position in 1910 and opened the Pasay Exchange. In 1912 he went prospecting for gold on the Island of Masbate, where he discovered and worked a small gold mine; built a stamp mill on the property which is now the I-X-L Mine, where he employed 65 men at that time. The principal source of the valuable ore furnished now for the running of the mine comes from the "Schober Tunnel and the Betel Nut lode" which he started in 1912. The I-X-L Mine has developed into a very good property, and is incorporated now with a capital stock of P1,550,000.00. It is milling 400 tons of ore per day valued at from P17.00 to P29.00 per ton, according to reports.

In 1919, Mr. Schober established the first Ice Cream business in Manila, known as the "Magnolia Dairy Products". He was also the originator of the Ice Drop business in the Philippines. In 1925, he sold the Magnolia Dairy Products to the San Miguel Brewery in order to devote his full time to the Legaspi Garden which he started in 1922. The Legaspi Garden operates day and night.

It has continued for 24 hours a day for the past 15 years up to 1938, with 131 employees, mostly Filipinos, receiving free medical attention and board, and many of these employees have been in the service of said restaurant from 8 to 15 years.
